

This slow-growing succulent spreads out in clumping mats. The tops of its leaves are dark green, while the underside is a deep purple color. She grows fine, fuzzy white filaments from its center that help it survive droughts by trapping water vapor from the air

Thrives in full to partial sun

Water every few weeks, once the soil is dry

Propagate by stem cuttings or seeds

Can be toxic