Grace - track your speed and time use better organization needs work but you held your own.

Valeria - Great rebuttal. Ad elaboration of 2nd speech.

Good Good Pire on the Subject but Action not being in Lat. America as asked by Deb.

The fact that we started this 40 yrs ago and the argument on the final focus needed to be stated way earlier in the round.

You did a good job @ pointing out the Bolivia argument, but did so too late.

Both the Criteria and the Deb were not Refuted as Anika stated.

Both sides had new arguments but neither called individual on it.

Both sides had more linking to their harms.

In the end, the point will go to the Neg b/c too many arguments were dropped. the Criteria was conceded to, (A) was not called out and all of the arguments were backed up w/ specifics.

Anika - you're a great speaker work on adding more meat to & substance to your arguments and Isabel - you laid out a good frame work for the remainder of the round.

Good Job at bringing them to the punch is stating "Don't let the Aff try and convince you in their 'Final' case" which they tried.

While both teams had well prepared arguments, HA BCWC's argument was better structured and not concentrated solely on the financial aspect. During crossfire (Grand) KCYL NSAC was confused about their argument.

WILLIAM - when you concentrate only on your paper, you start lacking eye contact. It would be nice if you took pauses to stress important statements.

NORA - while you were organized, had good body language, and were clear, you seemed to be in a rush. I rather hear half of it clearly, than not understand any of it.

BRANDON - you were clear, yet a little more eye contact would improve your speech.

ANGELA - you were well organized, had good body language (usage of hands) and eye contact, you were clear, and used pausing to stress important points in your argument. But take your time, rather than rushing and using a lot of "UM" fillers.

To the Honor Academy Coach
As an experienced debater, I highly recommend having your kids bring the full evidence to their rounds. They're really smart kids but their inability to provide the source evidence really hurt them in this round. The other team called them out and I had to concede.

Ultimately, Aff had much more solid refutations and were able provide more tangible net benefits.

AFK

- Lauren, her points were the most impressive 6th grade I've ever seen. Freaking amazing
- super awesome evidence, very clear and polite (both of you).

NER

- you guys are very very solid. you just missed a few key things on the flow.
- overall, still super impressed :)

Both teams: focus a little more on voting issues and clash between arguments. make it super clear how I should vote the round.
