A Bill to Improve the Quality of Drinking Water

BE IT ENACTED BY THE CONGRESS HERE ASSEMBLED THAT:

SECTION 1. Drinking water, from all sources it is extracted from, shall meet and/or exceed the final safety standards for consumable water across every state and county of the United States.

SECTION 2. The safety standards for consumable water shall be defined as water that possesses a pH level of no less than 6.5 and no more than 8.5 (with 7 being the optimal pH level), and water that has no more than 500 milligrams of dissolved solids per liter.

SECTION 3. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) shall be in charge of enforcing both National Primary and Secondary Drinking Water Regulations (NPDWRs and NSDWRs).

A. NPDWRs are currently being nationally regulated by the EPA, and include contaminants in drinking water that are potent enough to severely endanger the health of American citizens.

B. NSDWRs are currently unenforced by the EPA. However, such regulations would remove contaminants in drinking water that are dangerous enough to discolor skin and give drinking water unnatural coloring and odor.

SECTION 4. This legislation shall go into effect upon its passage.

SECTION 5. All laws in conflict with this legislation are hereby declared null and void.
