Case is built from the perspective of the U.S. which is in danger of being non-topical at times. Still Ryan's impact case is very nice. You don't do a good job of explaining what neo-con is which is a HUGE problem for your case. If your strongest card for a probable war is "not unthinkable" you do not have a strong impact.

Aminloo

Hitman 18 works very nicely for you, and in general your rebuttles are very well sourced. Could work on your CK etiquette. I end up not buying your war based on uniqueness but your Neo-Con stuff stands for me and your offence is solid.

Ren

Very well built case. Love the way it is organized. Ideas like neocolonialism are hard to wrap your head around but they pop up in debate all the time so they are worth learning. You are wasting time telling me how Economic growth is good, the neg argues that Economic growth doesn't happen in the AFF world. That said you did manage to hit all the necessary points.

Hsieh

I don't believe Nuclear war is likely either, but bad evidence is better than no evidence and you have no evidence. I like that you attack their 4 year old evidence but old evidence is better than no evidence. You defend the likely hood of a Chinese war being low beautifully.

Fantastic speaker, professional and unconsidering. You get lost in your own verbiage a little but otherwise CX is fine. Your flow during Summary is a little sloppy and misguided (We are dropped any Aff side) but I can't fault you for that given the Aff's unconventional structure. I wish you did more work impacting at all times if you claim this the biggest round issue. In general work more on clarity, this is Public Forum.

Ang

I wish you impacted what Chinese leverage actually means in terms of money or death. Same with the spread of authoritarianism. It would've been so easy to say authoritarianism causes the Muslim camps but you never actually do. CX was a little clumsy. You indulge in jargon a little non-productively given your inexperienced opponents. You extend enough points to win the round, but if the Aff had more concrete impacts you easily could have lost because you didn't properly weigh things like Authoritarianism

Lin

Khan 19 and Rid 19 work well together, but mediating the BRI before support feels a little abusive on the AFF but we get away with it. Summary really needed to hit things like authoritarianism. I like your debt point a lot, but you need to tell me why it matters more than authoritarianism.

Liao

Very short speech but you still manage to hit all her important points. If you de-link their Vietnam/sinifan/Dalit examples they lose all their offense. I wish you read out loud the Ingle card you referenced that proved EU was different than these other countries. CX was fantastic, I wish you had made some of these arguments in your speech instead. By far the best CX in the round, and I wish you brought that quick thinking into your speeches.

Amazing Round!!! Great clash on both sides.

AS won because they stayed to criteria, had great claims/reb.

- AS
- Solid structure throughout round.
 - On 4th claim of saving lives, try to be specific on how ppl are losing their lives (car accidents? broken roads?)
 - Stress on how it's the EU ben. then the world ben

- Neq
- In 1st X, AS stated china gaining power is bad. Drive harder on that
 - Point out that road deaths can do more with drivers than infrastructure
 - On the muslim concentration camps, point out that if EU joins kr, they are sending a message that they are okay with these deaths and violations of human rights

Andy: I have no clue where you are! please signpost. Are you responding to C1, C2, etc.

Both sides: lacking in impacts, stop repeating stats/warrants, you both have good analysis/reputation/clash.

APF: ~~your~~ your infra argument needs to emphasize what the EU will be missing out on.

RFD: APF is behind & unresponsive to many key arguments. 1st is how C1 infra argument has anything to do w/ EU. Next is how SG is bad because Huawei is under extreme scrutiny bc china spies. At the end of the day - EU violating their own human rights abuses = debt for many countries bc EU econ already failing = they're already a target.
