Ciara Cuddihy is an Irish-born glass artist who has been working in the glass industry for close to two decades. She first came to the United States as an exchange student, where she studied glass at S.I.U.C. Illinois. Drawn to both the craft and its possibilities, she later returned to Dublin to complete her degree at the National College of Art and Design, grounding her practice in both technical discipline and artistic exploration.

After graduating, Ciara purchased Studio West in Eugene, Oregon, and went on to successfully co-run the studio for 12 years. During her leadership, Studio West became a beloved local destination and a standout visitor experience—proudly voted the #1 thing to do in Eugene for five years running on TripAdvisor and rated in the top 99% in Groupon reviews.

At the heart of the studio's success was Ciara's commitment to warm, attentive customer care and an unforgettable hands-on approach that made glassblowing feel welcoming, accessible, and inspiring for people of all backgrounds.

Ciara later stepped away from Studio West to pursue another professional path while staying closely connected to the arts and continuing to refine her voice in glass. Glassblowing remains a lifelong passion—an ancient, exhilarating medium that continually challenges and rewards her. Her work is rooted in the interplay of color, form, and movement, celebrating the moment molten glass transforms into something luminous and alive. With each piece, Ciara aims to spark joy and curiosity, inviting viewers to slow down, look closer, and feel a sense of wonder in the presence of handcrafted artistry.
