VISIT VACAVILLE LAUNCHES ARTS TRAIL, SHARES MODIFIED ARTS WEEK SCHEDULE

New trail offers access to outdoor public art year-round

Vacaville, Calif. September 15, 2021 — Visit Vacaville today announced the launch of a new public Arts Trail which will guide residents and visitors through outdoor accessible art pieces across the city, including around Vacaville’s downtown area, from Andrews Park, through Main Street, and down to the library. The trail will help locals celebrate Arts Week in new ways, as some of the originally planned citywide events have been canceled.

“Arts Week will still take place from September 17th to 26th, but it will have an abbreviated schedule from what we had originally planned,” said Melyssa Reeves, President & CEO of Visit Vacaville. “We want to offer the arts in accessible outdoor ways, on a self-guided basis, until we can once again offer larger public events.”

The new Arts Trail will build on itself over time. Indoor public art pieces are not currently available for viewing but will be added once indoor spaces can resume fuller capacity.

“The Arts Trail is a wonderful way to highlight a few of the amazing public art pieces that exist in our community,” said Melody Ocampo, Recreation Supervisor for the City of Vacaville’s Parks and Recreation Department. “I encourage everyone to take a moment to experience the larger than life sculptures or stop and revel in our community’s tile art.”

The following events will also remain available as part of Arts Week:

- Performances by School of Rock
- Movies in the park with the Ag & Art Film Festival
- Downtown Vacaville Business Improvement District’s Annual Art, Wine & Brew Stroll
- Oil painting demonstrations and an Oktoberfest celebration in Town Square

- Pre-Publication Party at the Vacaville Museum featuring Author Diane Power Zimmerman's book Nut Tree: From a California Ranch to a Design, Food and Hospitality Icon
- Vacaville Ballet Company's production of Nightmare Before Nutcracker available via streaming
