Geocache Description:

This is a replacement cache for Quack Quack that it appears was eaten by the Lake Crabtree Monster. New Cache was placed in the same area except a little higher out of the lake flood zone.

The cache is not located on the main lake hiking trail but rather is located near the lake but out of the flood zone. There is a trail directly along the side of the lake but it is much rougher than the normal hiking trail. (path through high grass)

Cache is a micro so bring your own pen. Actual container holding the cache is much larger, camo'ed, and has been called the "Gray Ghost" in the South.
